

Holiday in Crete – Veresegyhaz in Action

Ági is on holiday in Crete. It's a beautiful day. The sun is shining, the sky is blue, and Ági is happy. She is dancing.

But there is a problem. There are some problems...

Problem Number One: There is no raki.

Problem Number Two: There is no draught beer. Ági wants to drink draught beer.

Problem Number Three is a big, big problem: The family is there and they are hungry.

It is 11AM and nothing is open. Everything is closed in Crete.

Ági makes a call to Viki. 'Viki, can you help me? I'm in Crete. I'm dancing but I'm very thirsty and there is no raki, there is no beer, and everything is closed. My family are here and they are hungry and there is no food.'

Viki says (dancing), 'Sorry, I am in a training in Norway.'

Ági makes a call to Maci. 'Maci, can you help me? I am in Crete. I am on holiday. I am with my family. They are hungry. I am thirsty. There is no raki. There is no beer. There is no food. Everything is shut - it's 11AM.'

Maci says (dancing), 'I am in training in Japan.'

© Boros Attila Botond, 2017

műfordító, egyéni és csoportos nyelvi tréner

+36-70-4256606

Angol nyelv történetekkel <http://angoltanulas.kacagva.hu/>

Magyar nyelv külföldieknek történetekkel <http://learnhungarian.kacagva.hu/>

Ági makes a call to Bruno.

'Bruno, can you help me?'

'Of course,' Bruno says. 'What is the problem?'

'I am in Crete. I have no food for the family. I have no raki. I have no beer, and it's very hot. Everything is closed - it's 11AM.'

'Ah, I am in Santorini. I can help you,' Bruno says.

'Ah, good,' Ági says.

Bruno goes to the shop. He gets beer. He gets raki. He gets food. And he gets pistachios. He has a bicycle and he goes to the boat with three big shopping bags on his bicycle. He goes slowly. At 12AM he is in the port.

Uh-oh! He has missed the boat! The boat was at 11:30. The next boat is at 5PM!

Bruno makes a call to Ági. 'The next boat is at 5PM!'

Ági says, 'Sh*t!'

She makes a call to me. 'Attila, can you help me?' 'What's the problem?'

'I am in Crete.'

'Oh, I am in Crete too. What's the problem?'

'There is no raki. There is no beer. The family are here and they are hungry. Everything is shut.'

I say, 'I work in a new restaurant in Crete and we open at 11AM.'

Ági is very happy. 'Can we go to that restaurant?'

'Of course. Come here. The biggest table is for you and your family.'

They come to the restaurant. At 12AM they are in my restaurant. Ági drinks a lot. The family eats a lot.

At 1PM the restaurant has no beer, no raki, and no food. I am desperate because now Ági is hungry and the family are thirsty and we have nothing. 'What do we do? What do we do?'

Ági calls Béla bácsi (the mayor of Veresegyhaz). 'Béla bácsi, can you help us?' 'Of course!' Béla bácsi makes a call to a military pilot in Santorini, and the pilot makes a call to Bruno because Bruno has everything.

'Come to the airport,' the pilot says.

Bruno rides his bicycle to the airport slowly. He gets to the airport at 2PM. The pilot takes him to my restaurant in Crete. They are there at 2:05PM.

Everybody is happy. Ági gets a call from Béla bácsi.

Béla bácsi says, 'Ági, is everything all right?'

She says, 'Yes. Thank you very much.'

THE END